Trump has fired the State Department inspector general in his latest effort targeting key watchdogs across the government. According to this letter he sent to Pelosi, Trump says he "no longer" has the "fullest confidence" in the State inspector general. Effective in 30 days.

May 15, 2020

The Honorable Nancy Pelosi
Speaker of the United States House of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Speaker Pelosi:

This is to advise that I am exercising my power as President to remove from office the Inspector General of the Department of State, effective 30 days from today.

It is extremely important that we promote the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness of Federal programs and activities. The Inspectors General have a critical role in the achievement of these goals. As is the case with regard to other positions where I, as President, have the power of appointment, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, it is vital that I have the fullest confidence in the appointees serving as Inspectors General. That is no longer the case with regard to this Inspector General.

At a later date, I will be submitting to the Senate my nomination of an individual for this position who has my full confidence and who meets the appropriate qualifications.

Sincerely,

85,000 deaths in 10 weeks. We still probably have a year until there's a viable vaccine. I don't get how anyone would even start to say that a month or two of stay-at-home orders, when there were no tests, was an over-reaction.

👀 the kicker to the NYT's new story about Zuckerberg nyti.ms/3fUMfyL

> It remains ■ be seen what an increasingly visible Mr. Zuckerberg will do when challenged by the powerful. ■ March, in an interview with The New York Times, he said Facebook would not tolerate "misinformation that has imminent risk of danger." He cited as an example "things like 'You can cure this by drinking bleach.' I mean, that's just in a different class."
> Days later, during a White House news conference, Mr. Trump wondered aloud about an "injection inside" of disinfectant. As poison control centers were flooded with questions and the makers of Clorox and Lysol issued statements imploring Americans not to ingest their caustic cleaners, Facebook wilted, and across the platform, video of the comments went swiftly viral.

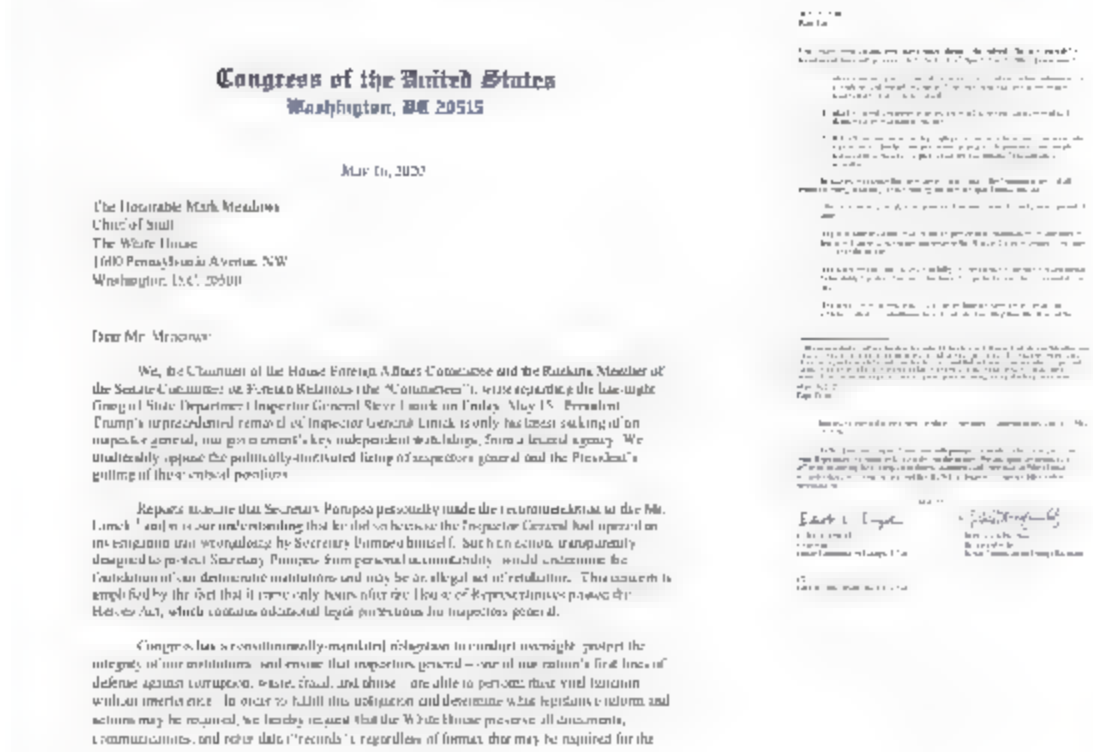
NEW: Rep. Eliot Engel has launched an investigation into the firing of State Department Inspector General Steve Linick.

Linick was fired by President Trump late Friday night after it was revealed an investigation had been opened against Secretary of State Mike Pompeo.



Congress of the United States
Washington, DC 20515

May 16, 2020

The Honorable Mark Meadows
Chief of Staff
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. Meadows:

We, the Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the Ranking Member of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations (the "Committees"), write regarding the late-night firing of State Department Inspector General Steve Linick on Friday, May 15. President Trump's unprecedented removal of Inspector General Linick is only his latest stalking of non-partisan, law enforcement, key independent watchdogs, from a federal agency. We unilaterally oppose the politically-motivated firing of inspectors general and the President's gutting of these critical positions.

Reports indicate that Secretary Pompeo personally made the recommendation to fire Mr. Linick. It is our understanding that he did so because the Inspector General had opened an investigation into wrongdoing by Secretary Pompeo himself. Such an action, transparently designed to protect Secretary Pompeo from personal accountability, would undermine the foundation of our democratic institutions and may be an illegal act of retaliation. This concern is amplified by the fact that it came only hours after the House of Representatives passed the Heroes Act, which contains additional legal protections for inspectors general.

Congress has a constitutionally-mandated obligation to conduct oversight, protect the integrity of our institutions, and ensure that inspectors general – one of the nation's first lines of defense against corruption, waste, fraud, and abuse – are able to perform their vital function without interference. In order to fulfill this obligation and determine what legislative reform and actions may be required, we hereby request that the White House preserve all documents, communications, and other data ("records"), regardless of format, that may be required for the

It's important to make this distinction, because we need to stay vigilant until there's a vaccine. Especially because virologists aren't counting out another outbreak come this Fall or Winter.

I keep thinking about what @AmandaMarcotte wrote in Salon about this story:

> sexual harassment and assault. (Salon is not addressing any individual outlet's choice not to cover this specific story but the general considerations typically involved in such a decision) It's not just about fairness to the accused, but also to the accusers. Women who tell these stories inevitably get blasted by skeptics who pick their stories apart, so it's critical to their safety that the reporting holds up under close scrutiny. That's only going to be more true when the story has major political implications or confusing twists that could be interpreted as red flags — or both like this one does

The firings of multiple Inspectors General is unprecedented; doing so without good cause chills the independence essential to their purpose. It is a threat to accountable democracy and a fissure in the constitutional balance of power.

Big WOW here: analysis of the impact of govt. social distancing efforts (SIPOs) in USA finds: "these results imply 10 times greater spread by April 27 without SIPOs (10 million cases) & >35 times greater spread w/out any of the four measures (35 million)" healthaffairs.org/doi/pdf/10.137 …

Strong Social Distancing Measures In The United States Reduced The COVID-19 Growth Rate

ABSTRACT State and local governments imposed social distancing measures in March and April of 2020 to contain the spread of novel coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19). These included large event bans, school closures, closures of entertainment venues, gyms, bars, and restaurant dining areas, and shelter-in-place orders (SIPOs). We evaluated the impact of these measures on the growth rate of confirmed COVID-19 cases across US counties between March 1, 2020 and April 27, 2020. An event-study design allowed each policy's impact on COVID-19 case growth to evolve over time. Adoption of government-imposed social distancing measures reduced the daily growth rate by 5.4 percentage points after 1–5 days, 6.8 after 6–10 days, 8.2 after 11–15 days, and 9.1 after 16–20 days. Holding the amount of voluntary social distancing constant, these results imply 10 times greater spread by April 27 without SIPOs (10 million cases) and more than 35 times greater spread without any of the four measures (35 million). Our paper illustrates the potential danger of exponential spread in the absence of interventions, providing relevant information to strategies for restarting economic activity. [*Editor's Note:

Texas peaked at 55% reduction from social distancing & now down to only 20% reduction. NYS peaked around 60% reduction & remains at 40%. There are many other factors to consider, but this is a good proxy for how seriously a region is taking this threat.

Last month, a poll commissioned by the RNC tested roughly 20 lines of attack against Joe Biden, ranging from the private business activities of his son to whether Biden has "lost" a step.

None of the lines of attack significantly moved voter sentiment.

But there are some limits to how well some of the attacks might work. After voters in the 17-state RNC survey were provided an onslaught of negative statements about Biden, the Democrat still won by 1 percent over Trump, compared with 3 percent before they heard the statements, an official familiar with the poll said. I don't really know who needs to hear this but increasing testing capacity doesn't necessarily mean increased positive. We are 2 months into social distancing; increased testing could find few cases, in many states it's finding a lot more positive cases.That is not good. It's bad

This is extremely important news. South Korea has given us a playbook. They have successfully contained an outbreak with 1) low baseline incidence, 2) rapid and aggressive contact tracing, 3) rapid and flood-the-zone testing.

If states want to follow the evidence, and replicate South Korea's low baseline incidence and testing levels, here are the right metrics for each state:

NEW stmt from Biden campaign comms director on @EricTrump's comments on the #coronavirus: "...for Eric Trump to claim that the coronavirus is a political hoax that will 'magically' disappear is absolutely stunning and unbelievably reckless."

Biden Campaign Responds to Eric Trump's Reckless Comments on Coronavirus

Today, in response to Eric Trump's comments that the coronavirus will "magically" disappear after Election Day, Biden for President Deputy Campaign Manager and Communications Director Kate Bedingfield released the following statement:

"We're in the middle of the biggest public health emergency in a century, with almost 90,000 Americans dead, 1.5 million infected, and 36 million workers newly jobless, so for Eric Trump to claim that the coronavirus is a political hoax that will 'magically' disappear is absolutely stunning and unbelievably reckless. The simple fact is that President Trump ignored the threat of the coronavirus for months and has mishandled the response at every step since — destroying the strong economy he inherited from the Obama-Biden administrations and leading to countless unnecessary deaths. Trump's campaign knows he can't run on that dismal record so they're desperate to do whatever they can to throw up a smokescreen to try to conceal his historic mismanagement of this crisis."

Neera, the piece reveals serious concerns abt principles of investigative reporting, something I know from 53 years of experience.

In IR you can't get a comma wrong, much less say "2" if "50."

It was a worthy piece; it's not definitive. Farrow's great work clearly was flawed.

Neera, the piece reveals serious concerns abt principles of investigative reporting, where I've got 53 years of experience.

In IR you can't get a comma wrong, much less say "2" if "50."

NYT ran a worthy piece; it's not definitive. Farrow's great work was flawed, not destroyed.

Do people understand that faking these numbers give people a false sense of security and could lead to deaths? Criminal. Utterly malevolent.

Why is this surprising? We heard the playbook weeks ago. I'm paraphrasing here, but "I want the boat out there. I like the numbers where they are." In other words, bake the numbers. Make them what looks better. It's dangerous and it's wrong, but this con man doesn't care.

I'm all for criticizing the media. I have criticisms of Ben's piece, and posted them. But this thing where you say he has some vague "agenda" is not criticism, it's just delegitimizing the media for no good reason.

Tara Reade is just not a credible narrator cnn.com/2020/05/19/pol ...

Reade told CNN that she received a bachelor of arts degree from Antioch University in Seattle under the auspices of a "protected program," personally working with the former president of the school to ensure her identity was protected while she obtained credits for her degree. She also said that she was a visiting professor at the school, on and off for five years.

Presented with this, Karen Hamilton, an Antioch University spokesperson, told CNN that "Alexandra McCabe attended but did not graduate from Antioch University. She was never a faculty member. She did provide several hours of administrative work."

An Antioch University official told CNN that such a "protected program" does not exist and never has.

Joe Biden says that he, as VP for eight years, read more presidential briefings than Trump has.

On the Presidential Daily Briefs warning about coronavirus, Biden says: "He didn't either read them, or he ignored them. Either is a dereliction of his duty."

Bernie Sanders had the support of the people who win elections in the margins for Democrats: young people and people of color. That's why Barack Obama won and Hillary Clinton didn't.

Now...who will bear the brunt of Biden's (likely Trump's) policies vs Bernie's?

Fine.

Black Americans on average owe more in student loans 12 years after college than when they borrowed.

More likely to lack access to healthcare.

And suffer extreme environmental racism.

I hope you defer to their need for full student loan forgiveness, universal healthcare

The governor's order allows people without symptoms but who may have been exposed to the virus to be tested without a doctor's order at select state testing sites. It also calls on doctors to seek tests for such patients.

BREAKING: CDC recognizes WH gating criteria - a downward trajectory - not sufficient; urges a low absolute incidence cdc.gov/coronavirus/20 ...

Overall Incidence Level

The disease occurrence gating indicators all pertain to assessing the trajectory of COVID-19 activity, but do not specify that COVID-19 incidence should reach an absolute level to move through the mitigation phases. Jurisdictions should be cautious in pivoting from a general community mitigation approach back toward an identification and containment approach until incidence is low enough and resources adequate to 1) attempt an initial interview for nearly all new COVID-19 cases within one day of health department notification, 2) to rapidly isolate all newly identified COVID-19 cases, and 3) to initiate appropriate follow up (isolation, self-monitoring, and rapid testing of symptomatic contacts) for nearly all identified contacts of newly identified cases. Incidence should also be low enough that health departments can respond to large outbreaks (e.g., nursing home outbreaks) that require substantial resources to investigate and control. Declines in incidence should also be enough for healthcare capacity to not only meet current demands, but to be able to comfortably surge in the event of an increase in cases (e.g., availability of acute care beds, critical care beds, ventilators, and adequate PPE).

This is false. Michigan is mailing absentee ballot applications, not ballots, to all registered voters. Georgia is doing the same thing. Ronna McDaniel told reporters Monday she didn't object to the idea sending voters applications for mail in ballots

It's good the positive test rate is going down, but if you're concerned about virus spread in absolute terms, the virus continues to spread at a relatively fast clip. I mean 20,000 positive cases a day - if that is it in totality - is a still a lot.

Unclear what neera's standard for "good news" is. In reality, movements or numbers that indicate relative progress are good news for most of us. In Neera's hyperpartisan world, it's useful to paint with an "everything is awful" brush. To be clear, trump is an absolute moron.

90% of projected coronavirus deaths could have been prevented if Trump hadn't ignored dire warnings and had implemented social distancing measures at least two weeks earlier.

More than 92,000 Americans are already dead. Chaos has a terrible price.

Rube or stooge, how can Glenn Greenwald actually think Joe fucking Biden is going to veer off the American political center for anything or anybody. And as far as the word xenophobic is concerned, the Trump administration has solid copyright. This guy is officially farce.

It is truly outrageous that Senate Republicans refuse to act as tens of millions lose their jobs, income and health care.

It's time to join the rest of the world. Congress must make sure that every worker keeps their paycheck and health insurance until this crisis is over.

That being said, you are correct that the number of new cases daily is still alarming especially since I believe a large portion of the decline is due to NYC seeing a huge reduction in cases due to social distancing. 2x/

For Democrats who worry that this situation is a means by which the hard left can relitigate a primary in which their preferred candidate lost, and thereby supplant the will of the voters, a Bruenig column like this is not going to be reassuring.

Stop gaslighting. Denying people's experiences isn't progressive. No one is saying Sen Sanders is doing this but I've had death threats from supporters of Sen Sanders. And instead of saying that's bad or people should cool it, you engage in classic whataboutism. Disturbing.

If Ryan hadn't blocked me I would love to ask him why he thinks this is dispositive prove of anything, since it's not an official document and it contradicts what Antioch said - btw CNN reported she also claimed to have TAUGHT at Antioch, which they also refuted

> Reade attended the school, she never graduated.
> Reached for comment by the Weekly, Reade says that the CNN reporting is incorrect, and that the statement from Antioch University is incomplete. She says that her degree From Antioch University in Seattle was conferred under special circumstances by former Chancellor Toni Murdoch. Reade had recently changed her identity following the separation from what she describes as a deeply abusive ex-husband. In order to fulfill her graduation requirements Reade says she had to present coursework completed prior to her identity change. Her account is corroborated by an unofficial transcript from the Seattle University School of Law, which lists Antioch University as Reade's prior degree granting institution.

I have the coronavirus. I've been sick for a week, and really, really fatigued, with muscle pain. So far, thankfully, no fever and my oxygen levels are fine. But I was super careful, wore masks, carried hand sanitizer. Haven't really socialized with friends.

Sadly, with parts of the country reopening, I think it will make things even more dangerous for those of us trying to isolate. Now when we go out for essentials we'll be encountering those who are circulating more, increasing our risk of becoming infected.

In all fairness @neeratanden, if one is not pro Assad, one is pro ISIS. ISIS wants Assad out, so should @TulsiGabbard be pro ISIS instead? This is a lose lose approach to Syria. The best position to take there is to leave altogether.

Is it too much to ask people to recognize that Biden has held press briefings and the media hasn't covered them? Certainly not live. The right place to send this complaint is to CNN and MSNBC.

> Anil Dash @anildash

This is a terrible headline. The Times is erasing the reason for the protest. This is exactly what Trump wants. To erase the treatment of Black Americans as the rationale for opposition. Shame on The New York Times.

Let me say this: if the President had "mobilized all available federal resources" to stop the pandemic, thousands more Americans would be alive now.

This is a really good question for @msnbc and @cnn; this isn't a function of the Biden campaign. This is a narrative created by the media but also the result of media decisions of what not to carry.

Independent medical examiners determined #GeorgeFloyd's death was due to asphyxia from sustained forceful pressure. Full statement:

family of George Floyd call for arrest of all officers and Chauvin to be charged with first-degree murder

MINNEAPOLIS (June 1, 2020) -- Attorney Ben Crump, co-counsels, and the family of George Floyd today called for the arrest of all the officers who played a part in Floyd's death and for a first-degree murder charge to be brought against Derek Chauvin, after independent medical examiners who conducted an autopsy of Floyd Sunday determined that asphyxiation from sustained pressure was the cause of death.

World renowned medical examiner Dr. Michael Baden and Dr. Allecia Wilson found the manner of Mr. Floyd's death was homicide caused by asphyxia due to neck and back compression that led to a lack beyond question. He would be alive today if not for the pressure applied to his neck by [redacted] officer Derek Chauvin and the strain on his body from [redacted] additional officers kneeling on [him]," said lead attorney Crump. "Mr. Floyd's death was a homicide by officers who taunted him while holding him down for more than eight minutes. And the officer who stood by doing nothing was a physical blue shield – a living symbol of the code of silence."

Co-counsel Antonio Romanucci of Romanucci & Blandin LLC, said that while it was Chauvin's knee that pressed into Mr. Floyd's neck, it was the culture of the Minneapolis Police Department that was legally responsible for his death.

"The City of Minneapolis clearly had a pattern custom and practice of failing to train and discipline its police officers, creating a culture of impunity [redacted] – deserves a first degree murder charge," Crump said. "What we know is this: George Floyd was alive before his encounter with Derek Chauvin and his fellow officers, and he was dead shortly after that. The tragic cause of this death is exactly clear, and we are fiercely committed to justice for his family."

Crump, the family and the other members of the legal team called on protestors to continue to raise their voices but refrain from the violence and looting.

"On behalf of the family that we understand the righteous anger we see playing out on streets across the country. We support the activism and energy of the people who want to make sure we achieve change, and we hope those efforts continue, Crump said. "But looting and violence are absolutely

He's done that in terms of practical oversight, but also on the level of symbolism — working to amp up militarization after the somewhat bipartisan post-Ferguson backlash.

Very powerful resignation letter from a Facebook engineer who worked on misinformation tools.

"Mark always told us that he would draw the line at speech that calls for violence. He showed us on Friday that this was a lie."

I'm resigning from my job ■ Facebook.

For years, President Trump has enjoyed an exception ■ Facebook's Community Standards; over and over he posts abhorrent, targeted messages that would get any other Facebook user suspended from the platform. He's permitted to break the rules, since his political speech is "newsworthy."

"when the looting starts, the shooting starts."

Mark always told us that he would draw the line at speech that calls for violence. He showed us on Friday that this was a lie. Facebook will keep moving the goalposts every time Trump escalates, finding excuse after excuse not to act on increasingly dangerous rhetoric. Since Friday, I've spent a lot of time trying to understand and process the decision not to remove the racist, violent post Trump made Thursday night, but Facebook, complicit in the propagation of weaponized hatred, is on the wrong side of history.

I cannot keep excusing Facebook's behavior. Facebook is providing a platform that enables politicians to radicalize individuals and glorify violence, and we are watching the United States succumb to the same kind of social media-fueled division that has gotten people killed in the Philippines, Myanmar, and Sri Lanka. I'm scared for my country and I'm done trying to justify this.

My last day will be June 12th. If you have contacts in the San Francisco Bay Area looking to recruit a software engineer, please DM me.

This engineer, who worked on misinformation tools, did just that:

Timothy J. Aveni

I'm resigning from my job at Facebook.

For years, President Trump has enjoyed an exception to Facebook's Community Standards; over and over he posts abhorrent, targeted messages that would get any other Facebook user suspended from the platform. He's permitted to break the rules, since his political speech is "newsworthy."

"when the looting starts, the shooting starts."

Mark always told us that he would draw the line at speech that calls for violence. He showed us on Friday that this was a lie. Facebook will keep moving the goalposts every time Trump escalates, finding excuse after excuse not to act on increasingly dangerous rhetoric. Since Friday, I've spent a lot of time trying to understand and process the decision not to remove the racist, violent post Trump made Thursday night, but Facebook, complicit in the propagation of weaponized hatred, is on the wrong side of history.

This massive, open wound in our country will not be healed overnight, but if we use this moment not to rip that wound open further but to commit ourselves more than ever to healing, we can overcome seemingly insurmountable obstacles as our country has before.

NEW via @MonmouthPoll 🚨: 57% of Americans now say police officers are more likely to use force against black subjects than white subjects regardless of situation.

That represents a 49 POINT NET INCREASE since December 2014!

B6. When faced with a difficult or dangerous situation, are police officers more likely to use excessive force if the culprit is black, or are they just as likely to use excessive force against black and white culprits given the same type of situation?

TREND:	June 2020	July 2016*	Dec. 2014

One murder after another of a Black American at the hands of police officers. It is a blight on our history that this pain has been disregarded even as it has stared us in the face for so long.

There are positive forces working for change in our country to stop the ongoing killings of Black Americans in particular & to live up to the ideals our country was founded on. Sadly, as is so often the case, President Trump has been part of the problem, not part of the solution

He has explicitly encouraged police violence as president, utterly ignored the concrete policy steps developed by his predecessor in conjunction with activist leaders, and now militarized the nation's capital for a photo op.

.@WashArchbishop Gregory has released a statement on the president's visit to the Saint John Paul II National Shrine.

Archbishop Wilton Gregory Issues Statement on Planned Presidential Visit

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Here is a statement from Washington Archbishop Wilton D. Gregory regarding the planned visit today from the president at the Saint John Paul II National Shrine:

I find it baffling and reprehensible that any Catholic facility would allow itself to be so egregiously misused and manipulated in a fashion that violates our religious principles, which call us to defend the rights of all people even those with whom we might disagree. Saint Pope John Paul II was an ardent defender of the rights and dignity of human beings. His legacy bears vivid witness to that truth. He certainly would not condone the use of tear gas and other deterrents to silence, scatter or intimidate them for a photo opportunity in front of a place of worship and peace.

cartercenter.org/news/pr/2020/s …

Rosalynn and I are pained by the tragic racial injustices and consequent backlash across our nation in recent weeks. Our hearts are with the victims' families and all who feel hopeless in the face of pervasive racial discrimination and outright cruelty. We all must shine a spotlight on the immorality of racial discrimination. But violence, whether spontaneous or consciously incited, is not a solution.

As a white male of the South, I know all too well the impact of segregation and injustice to African Americans. As a politician, I felt a responsibility to bring equity to my state and our country. In my 1971 inaugural address as Georgia's governor, I said: "The time for racial discrimination is over." With great sorrow and disappointment, I repeat those words today, nearly five decades later. Dehumanizing people debases us all; humanity is beautifully and almost infinitely diverse. The bonds of our common humanity must overcome the divisiveness of our fears and prejudices.

Since leaving the White House in 1981, Rosalynn and I have strived to advance human rights in countries around the world. In this quest, we have seen that silence can be as deadly as violence. People of power, privilege, and moral conscience must stand up and say "no more" to a racially discriminatory police and justice system, immoral economic disparities between whites and blacks, and government actions that undermine our unified democracy. We are responsible for creating a world of peace and equality for ourselves and future generations.

We need a government as good as its people, and we are better than this.

That's not exactly true.

Trump has spoken unequivocally about reforming aggressive policing tactics:

When he publicly told cops not to be too careful not to harm ▮ brutalize constituents, he was making it perfectly clear that he is against reforming aggressive policing tactics.

Firing tear gas into groups of peaceful protesters in front of the WH, during a briefing that stops just shy of declaring martial law, while making clear he supports the 2nd amendment. No attempt at unity or reform of systemic racism. Quite extraordinary.

Perhaps the most extraordinary a former Cabinet member has ever said about the president who appointed him:

theatlantic.com/politics/archi …

Instructions given by the military departments to our troops before the Normandy invasion reminded soldiers that "The Nazi slogan for destroying us…was 'Divide and Conquer.' Our American answer is 'In Union there is Strength.'" We must summon that unity to surmount this crisis—confident that we are better than our politics.

Donald Trump is the first president in my lifetime who does not try to unite the American people—does not even pretend to try. Instead he tries to divide us. We are witnessing the consequences of three years of this deliberate effort. We are witnessing the consequences of three years without mature leadership. We can unite without him, drawing on the strengths inherent in our civil society. This will not be easy, as the past few days have shown, but we owe it to our fellow citizens; to past generations that bled to defend our promise; and to our children.

Unidentifiable law enforcement patrolling DC. For three days journalists have asked them which agency they are with. No answers.

Back outside the White House. Today the perimeter has been pushed back another half block. Federal law enforcement of some kind, but they won't identify themselves, and all insignias and name plates have been removed.

Finally, I looked at the question of the effectiveness of civilian oversight agencies in making law enforcement accountable.

They can be effective, but they need to be independent, well resourced, and have real power over agencies.

This, from @adamserwer, is … well, just read it for yourself: theatlantic.com/ideas/archive/…

> Just as his supporters mistake cruelty for honesty and bluster for courage, Trump has mistaken bloodlust for leadership. The bombast hides the fundamental truth that the president is a coward, so crippled by the fear of appearing weak that he screams for blood from the safety of his darkened White House, emerging only to gas peaceful protesters and clergymen in an attempt to look strong. He is incapable of understanding how further brutality fuels the unrest he has proved incompetent at confronting.
> Donald Trump proclaimed himself the law-and-order candidate. This is what law and order without justice looks like: a nation without law, order, or justice.

The devil is in detail: The change in total nonfarm payroll employment for March was revised down by 492,000, from -881,000 to -1.4 million, and the change for April was revised down by 150,000, from -20.5 million to -20.7 million.

Exactly! The unemployment rate went down a bit because employers have brought staff back as businesses begin to open. Unemployment has indeed risen, but some of the furloughed folks have come back. The numbers offset each other. The numbers are still very bad.

Going forward we are going to need to pay more attention to the temporary vs permanent layoff info, which is not normally something we focus on but is clearly a critical distinction in this weird situation.

Exactly. These are not newly created jobs by Trump or Ivanka. These are previously furloughed employees gradually returning to work during reopenings with restrictions, often in skeleton crews for reduced hours/week until clients and customers return.

I understand why the comparisons being made center on 1967 and 1968. But perhaps more accurate would be to think about 2020 in the context of 1963-1965, when largely peaceful civil rights activists encountered violence from police authorities.

I can't imagine people want to talk about The Op-Ed, but: This was the poll Cotton cited when it showed support for "sending in the troops" at 58%. Down 16 points in a week. twitter.com/Politics_Polls …

> Not surprisingly, public opinion is on the side of law enforcement and law and order, not insurrectionists. According to a recent poll, 58 percent of registered voters, including nearly half of Democrats and 37 percent of African-Americans, would support cities' calling in the military to "address protests and demonstrations" that are in "response to the death of George Floyd." That opinion may not appear often in chic salons, but widespread support for it is fact nonetheless.

A lot of that looks like typical partisan hardening. Democratic support for the idea fell by 28 points after Trump's Rose Garden speech, independent support fell by 9 points. It's like a one-lesson example in why "stoking the base" isn't enough to win.

Reflecting on the Cotton op ed, I believe The Times is cowed by conservative arguments that Trumpism represents the silent majority. And that misconception leads them - in the editorial page and even sometimes the news - to intolerable blindness to racism and hate.

The Republican party is going the way of the Whig Party. The Dem Party will be the new Conservative Party and a Progressive Party will be born. And Bush, Cheney, Colin, Biden, and Neera will rightfully be in the same party.

Signals have to be costly to be useful as signals. Floating an unpopular slogan does more to suss out which leaders are devoted to your cause. Anyone can repeat a popular slogan.

> (((Yair Rosenberg))) @Yair_Rosenberg
> I've seen well-meaning people explain that "defund the police" actually just means intensive political and social reform. Why do people take often popular proposals that could easily garner popular support and rebrand them with radical slogans that won't and that they don't mean?

We have had some huge one-day demonstrations, e.g. March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom (1963); antinuclear march in NYC (1982), and Women's March (2017). We have widespread, simultaneous protests, such as in the days following MLK, Jr.'s assassination (1968).

The national polls haven't changed since April which is pretty scary to think. Like how is that even possible? How is Trump able to keep hold even after the whole disaster that Covid19 has been and his response to the protests. <<<< This is the most scary part for me

Brian Chovanec @Brian_Chovanec · 5h

But they show a consistent Biden lead, that is slowly increasing over last week or two. I'd actually look at that as somewhat comforting. If massive news events can't widen Biden's lead, hopefully other massive news events in the next 5 months also won't help Trump shrink lead.

Lord. Which President has an actual philosophy on the use of military force consistently applied? Reagan exiting Lebanon? Clinton's actions in Bosnia but not Rwanda? W's Iraq debacle lied about the rationale of use of force.

doesn't even seem to be a presidential issue when you, a mere propagandist hack, seem to be rich with questionable military philosophies. like when you wanted to appropriate Libya's oil.

We have a giant deficit. They have a lot of oil. Most Americans would choose not to engage in the world because of that deficit. If we want to continue to engage in the world, gestures like having oil rich countries partially pay us back doesn't seem crazy ■■ me.

Do we prefer cuts ■■ Head Start? Or WIC? Or Medicaid? Because we live ■■ deficit politics, and that's what is happening and will be happening even more.

Yes. I would also say that Biden has been ahead of Trump pretty consistently for about a year. Doesn't mean he will win. But you'd rather be Biden than Trump in this race.

I believe that knowing the origins of "Defund The Police" can reveal that the reason it is a divisive slogan ■ because it was intended to be a divisive slogan from the start, and was seeded by bad actors who are now using it against us.

I never really wrote (or even spoke) about my stutter until I interviewed Biden last fall. And I never expected stutterers all over the world to send me letters about their own lifelong struggles with this disorder. I'm deeply humbled and grateful to work with @aaknopf on this:

> Atlantic Senior Editor John Hendrickson's LIFE ON DELAY, a deep exploration of the disability of stuttering, told through his own experiences and the lives of others, with forays into the science and pathology of communication, in the model of Hendrickson's widely read Atlantic magazine feature about Joe Biden's lifelong struggle with stuttering, to Jonathan Segal at Knopf, in a pre-empt, by Amelia Atlas at ICM (world English).

HOUSTON — Most did not know him. But they knew the city that shaped him, and that was enough.

They were black and white, young and old. They were people of prominence like the governor, and they were the diverse, multiethnic workers who had built the country's fourth-largest city, lacking title but not honor. They waited in the Houston sun for hours to spend the briefest of moments in a hymn-filled sanctuary, to grieve and pray by the body of George Floyd.

They came by the hundreds. And then hundreds more.

"Numbers speak volumes," said Angie Pickens, 43, a chemical-company worker who stood in line holding a bouquet of flowers to honor the 46-year-old man who has become the latest symbol of police violence in America. "I'm a mother of three sons, so we're all in this fight together, and that's why I'm here."

Feels a little like Bernie's getting credit for wise words, where Kamala is actually pushing forward with legislation for the same things.

Is it too much to ask people to recognize that Biden has held press briefings and the media hasn't covered them? Certainly not live. The right place to send this complaint is to CNN and MSNBC.

> Anil Dash @anildash
> It is rank incompetence on the part of @JoeBiden & his campaign that they aren't having daily COVID briefings with reliable information & trustworthy sources about how people can organize to drive local responses and help those in need. Leaders need to lead, period.

NASCAR Statement:

The presence of the confederate flag at NASCAR events runs contrary to our commitment to providing a welcoming and inclusive environment for all fans, our competitors and our industry. Bringing people together around a love for racing and the community that it creates is what makes our fans and sport special. The display of the confederate flag will be prohibited from all NASCAR events and properties.

JUST IN: Pelosi urges House/Senate panel to instruct officials to begin removing 11 statues honoring Confederacy figures from the Capitol. speaker.gov/sites/speaker. …

Washington, D.C. 20510

The Honorable Zoe Lofgren
Vice Chairperson
Joint Committee on the Library
B01 Longworth House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Chairman Blunt and Vice Chairperson Lofgren:

The Joint Committee on the Library is tasked, by law, with management of the National Statuary Hall collection, including the authority to determine the placement of statues. Currently, 11 statues representing Confederate soldiers and officials are on display as part of the National Statuary Hall collection in the United States Capitol. Among these 11 are Jefferson Davis and Alexander Stephens, President and Vice President of the Confederate States of America, respectively, both of whom were charged with treason against the United States.

The infamous words of Stephens make as clear today as they did in 1861 the aims of the Confederacy. In his "corner-stone speech," Stephens asserted that the "prevailing ideas" relied upon by the Framers included "the assumption of the equality of the races. This was an error." Instead, he laid out in blunt and simple terms the awful truth of the Confederacy. "Our new government is founded upon exactly the opposite idea, its foundations are laid, its corner-stone rests, upon the great truth that the negro is not equal to the white man, that slavery subordination to the superior race is his natural and normal condition."

As I have said before, the halls of Congress are the very heart of our democracy. The statues in the Capitol should embody our highest ideals as Americans, expressing who we are and who we aspire to be as a nation. Monuments to men who advocated cruelty and barbarism to achieve such a plainly racist end are a grotesque affront to these ideals. Their statues pay homage to hate, not heritage. They must be removed.

While I believe it is imperative that we never forget our history lest we repeat it, I also believe that there is no room for celebrating the violent bigotry of the men of the Confederacy in the hallowed

Then ask Mark and Jake to explain why that is.

General Milley apologizes for his participation in Trump church photo op

'I should not have been there,' Milley says of Trump photo op.

The country's top military official apologized on Thursday for taking part in President Trump's walk across Lafayette Square for a photo op after authorities used tear gas and rubber bullets to clear the area of peaceful protesters.

"I should not have been there," Gen. Mark A. Milley, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in a prerecorded video commencement address to National Defense University. "My presence in that moment and in that environment created a perception of the military involved in domestic politics."

It's time to acknowledge this. Sure, we all have our individual motivations. But by and large, the people protesting police brutality aren't the ones bringing murder and mayhem. It's the few who were waiting for an opportunity, for this kind of cover to launch a covert attack.

Using the NYT as the example a series of fear based tweets led to panic in the newsroom which led to a mad scramble to protest an opinion by Tom Cotton which then got written off as bad fact-checking. The message: we can't tolerate anything off message.

Not to mention op-eds from any number of other conservatives.

That is different. This was in the heat of the moment. The narrative the Times was pushing was to downplay the fear Americans were experiencing at home because it was insulting to the protesters.

And we're sure they aren't looking to stop Americans fleeing?

Because, I'm not sure I'm okay with the whole "let grandma die to goose the market" approach.

Are we now going to have a 3 day news cycle about Donald Trump's health and whether he's physically able to handle the demands of the presidency or does the media only do that for Hillary Clinton?

Easy to imagine Clinton treating it more like a crisis early on, doing small stuff like wearing a mask, enlisting Obama and Bush for PSAs — some kind of a "war footing" approach. But we wouldn't have been New Zealand in terms of infections.

I'm very skeptical that the case/death counts would have been appreciably different. She would not, however, speculated about injecting disinfectant. As we've seen, e.g. NY Mayor/Gov, that type of performance can matter more than topline numbers.

Daniel W. Drezner @dandrezner · 2h

If nothing else, she would have taken the threat more seriously and probably acted more quickly to urge/enact quarantines and lockdowns. Just acting a week earlier would have had an appreciable impact.

This misunderstands the issue. If we had mass national testing in January and February we could have contained outbreaks. So this patchwork in May June may not have even existed. South Korea isn't engaged in a debate among states about reopening because it never closed

Possible. But for your scenario to be credible the following needs to be true:

1) A Clinton-led CDC doesn't botch the testing rollout;
2] Robust contact tracing is in place by early February;
3) There's a recognition the disease vector is primarily from Europe and not China.

Correct me if I'm wrong, but the initial CDC screw-up was within the permanent staff, and took weeks for testing labs to figure out. I can buy Clinton shaving two weeks off of this screw-up — which is significant! — but it still would likely have happened.

CDC or HHS decided to do its own test. That was the decision that was the first bad decision. That decision should have been elevated to the White House and would have been in an Obama or Clinton Admin.

Okay this is interesting. So you think on Earth 2 a Clinton White House would have instructed testing labs to copy the WHO/Roche test? Was that the norm in prior administrations?

1) A Clinton-led CDC doesn't botch the testing rollout;
2] Robust contact tracing is in place by early February;
3) There's ■ recognition the disease vector is primarily from Europe and not China.

CDC was able to botch the results because no one from the White House was managing this. Because he didn't want the testing to freak out the markets.

talking seriously about shutdowns here. But like I said, I don't think that's really what matters. It's more about perceptions of competence.

Easy to imagine Clinton treating it more like a crisis early on, doing small stuff like wearing a mask, enlisting Obama and Bush for PSAs — some kind of a "war footing" approach. But we wouldn't have been New Zealand in terms of infections.

The durability of Confederate nostalgia signaled our 155-year failure to declare the issues of the Civil War as settled. The collapse of resistance (except from #Trump) to taking down Confederate symbols is thus an important indicator of change.

2 BOSTOCK v. CLAYTON COUNTY

Opinion of the Court

Sometimes small gestures can have unexpected consequences. Major initiatives practically guarantee them. In our time, few pieces of federal legislation rank in significance with the Civil Rights Act of 1964. There, in Title VII, Congress outlawed discrimination in the workplace on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin. Today, we must decide whether an employer can fire someone simply for being homosexual or transgender. The answer is clear. An employer who fires an individual for being homosexual or transgender fires that person for traits or actions it would not have questioned in members of a different sex. Sex plays a necessary and undisguisable role in the decision, exactly what Title VII forbids.

Those who adopted the Civil Rights Act might not have anticipated their work would lead to this particular result. Likely, they weren't thinking about many of the Act's consequences that have become apparent over the years, including its prohibition against discrimination on the basis of motherhood or its ban on the sexual harassment of male employees. But the limits of the drafters' imagination supply no reason to ignore the law's demands. When the express terms of a statute give us one answer and extratex-

This a landmark day for LGTBQ people, and we have every reason to celebrate that a conservative-majority SCOTUS has affirmed LGBTQ employment protections. Our work is not done. We have to pass the Equality Act and ensure all forms of anti-LGBTQ discrimination are banned.

There continues to be this ebb-and-flow where people alternatively become too optimistic or too pessimistic in ways that are somewhat detached from the data. Certainly, the death numbers have been better, lately. 7-day average now at ~700, down from ~2,000 at the peak.

Why are the airlines just NOW threatening to ban passengers who don't wear masks? The reality is that this should have been mandated months ago. We had all the evidence we needed earlier this spring: masks save lives.

Planes are petri dishes even on the best of days.

If we wanted to consciously hurt the economy we would devise a system of closing down, reopening before we contained the virus, and then constant closings. What a stupid way to do this.

Yes my plan would have followed other countries. Mass test early to contain the virus and never close down. Failing that, institute a national stay at home, testing, contact tracing and isolation plan so that you contain the virus. See e.g. Germany.Their cases are radically down

Yes my plan would have followed other countries. Mass test early to contain the virus and never close down. Failing that, institute a national stay at home, testing, contact tracing and isolation plan so that you contain the virus. See e.g. Germany.Their cases are radically down

The problem is the virus does not know state borders. America is kinda unique in the world in never adopting any kind of national plan to fight the virus. Leaving it all up to states leaves us all vulnerable when people can easily cross state borders.

we still have freedom of movement in this country, yes? it doesn't matter if some states are doing a good job if domestic travel is unrestricted.

Look at Germany. They've handled this virus almost infinitely better and they have states. It's because they had a national plan from the start. They have a federal system but a national plan works.

NEW from @JoeBiden: "President Trump sold out the American people to protect his political future...He thought that letting the President of China run the table on us in the long run would give him another term in the short run."

Statement by Vice President Joe Biden

Today, we learned from John Bolton, the President's former national security advisor, President Trump sold out the American people to protect his political future. He reportedly asked Xi Jinping, China's leader, to help him get re-elected. He was willing to [illegible] away our most cherished democratic values for the empty promise of a flawed [illegible] deal behind him out of his disastrous tariff war that did so much damage to our farmers, manufacturers, and consumers.

If these accounts are true, it's not only morally repugnant, it's a violation of Donald Trump's sacred duty to the American people to protect America's interests and defend values.

For months, our country and the world have suffered through the COVID-19 pandemic. More than 117,000 [illegible] have lost their lives and tens of millions of workers are unemployed — and we've been hurt far worse because of Donald Trump's inability to k and his failure to meet the crisis. INBOX: Three more self-identified members of the "Boogaloo" movement indicted for trying to incite violence in Las Vegas protests.

SEEKING TO EXPLOIT PROTESTS IN LAS VEGAS AND INCITE VIOLENCE

LAS VEGAS – A federal grand jury indicted Stephen T. Parshall, aka "Kiwi," 35, Andrew Lynam, 23, and William L. Loomis, 40, all of Las Vegas, for violations of federal law for conspiracy to cause destruction during protests in Las Vegas and possession of an unregistered destructive device, specifically, a so-called "Molotov cocktail."

U.S. Attorney Nicholas A. Trutanich for the District of Nevada, Special Agent in Charge Aaron C. Rouse for the FBI, and Sheriff Joseph Lombardo of the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department made the announcement.

According to allegations contained in the criminal complaint and indictment, Parshall, Lynam, and Loomis claimed to be members of the "Boogaloo" movement, a term used by extremists to signify a coming civil war and/or collapse of society. From April 2020 to May 30, 2020, the defendants conspired to damage and destroy – by fire and explosives – buildings and property owned by the U.S. Government, as well as a public utility installation. On May 30, the defendants possessed Molotov cocktails to throw at police in downtown Las Vegas, during a protest connected to George Floyd's death.

Parshall, Lynam, and Loomis were all arrested on May 30, 2020, and have been ordered detained by U.S. Magistrate Judge Nancy J. Koppe.

If convicted, Parshall, Lynam, and Loomis each face a statutory maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a $250,000 fine for conspiracy to damage and destroy by fire and explosive; and ten years in prison and a $250,000 fine for possession of unregistered firearms. The maximum statutory sentences are prescribed by Congress and are provided here for informational purposes only. If convicted of any federal offense, the sentencing of a defendant will be determined by the court based on the advisory Sentencing Guidelines and other statutory factors.

An indictment alleges that crimes have been committed, and all defendants are presumed innocent until proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

In addition to the federal charges, the Clark County District Attorney's office has filed state charges against the defendants, including one count of Assist, Solicit or Conspire Conspiracy to Commit an Act of Terrorism; one count of Provide Material Support for use in the Commission of an Act of Terrorism; one count of Conspiracy to Damage or

Is it too much to ask people to recognize that Biden has held press briefings and the media hasn't covered them? Certainly not live. The right place to send this complaint is to CNN and MSNBC.

> Anil Dash @anildash

I already tweeted this article first thing this morning! My point all along was not that the protests were dangerous. I've been a big believer in the findings on low risk of outdoor transmission. The issue was the contradiction with other expert warnings.

That is, the issue was the sharp swing in having many public-health experts give the all-clear to these mass gatherings, while having only recent discouraged outdoor funerals and many other group outdoor activities.

I think you have to recognize that most experts have been saying parks are safe for close to 2 months. It's a virus we know little about. Their initial cautions shouldn't be used as a club against them.

It wasn't just about parks. Outdoor funerals of more than 10 people were still banned in much of the country a week before the protests. Plus most youth sports, etc. There's simply no denying that the OKing of the protests represented a sharp (correct!) swing by many experts.

So many people chastising public health community are ignoring that knowledge of this virus evolves and deepens. In Feb. we knew so little about transmission & public health people were being conservative because their job is to save lives.

Berman's office is investigating Trump's lawyer Rudy Giuliani. He charged Jeffrey Epstein, a former Trump friend, with child sex trafficking. And SDNY was reportedly probing whether Deutsche Bank had complied with anti-money laundering and other laws.

To recap:

1) Berman was appointed under 28 U.S.C. § 546(d).

2) That statute contemplates that he keeps his job until a permanent successor is confirmed by the Senate.

3) 28 U.S.C. § 541(c) says U.S. Attorneys are subject to removal by the President.

So the statutes conflict.

28 U.S. Code §546. Vacancies

U.S. Code Notes

prev | next

(a) Except as provided in subsection (b), the Attorney General may appoint a United States attorney for the district in which the office of United States attorney is vacant.

(b) The Attorney General shall not appoint as United States attorney a person to whose appointment by the President to that office the Senate refused to give advice and consent.

(c) A person appointed as United States attorney under this section may serve until the earlier of—

(1) the qualification of a United States attorney for such district appointed by the President under section 541 of this title; or

(2) the expiration of 120 days after appointment by the Attorney General under this section.

(d) If an appointment expires under subsection (c)(2), the district court for such district may appoint a United States attorney to serve until the vacancy is filled. The order of appointment by the court shall be filed with the clerk of the court.

This is the best news about the pandemic - the fatality rate continues to fall, so even as the number of new daily cases has stayed roughly the same (or even risen), the number of deaths is falling.

With more widespread testing we are finding cases earlier than a few months ago. So deaths can lag new positive cases by 3 weeks. Seems like deaths are lower as we have fewer nursing home cases, fewer amongst the elderly. But they may well climb.

This would be more convincing if the impeachment hadn't been narrowly focused and ignored the wide swath of Trump's crimes (as even John Bolton acknowledge). Also, if there were checks on Bill Barr & other underlings.

More convincing to who? Impeaching a president is a pretty significant event of accountability for the public. That Pelosi does not clear bars set by you is perhaps less of a problem than you think.

Barr should have been impeached for his handling of the Mueller report and had the House used Trump's impeachment - knowing the Senate would never remove him - as a way of highlighting all his crimes it may have been more effective.

Just in: political consultant who wanted to invade and take Libya's oil revenue as "payback" thinks it's actually good that Dems consistently sign off on Trump's foreign policy goals.

that positioning. In October, 2011, a CAP national security writer, Benjamin Armbruster, circulated a discussion on CNN about whether Libya should be forced to turn over its oil revenue to the U.S. as compensation and gratitude for the U.S. having "liberated" Libya.

After one CAP official, Faiz Shakir, noted how perverse it is to first bomb a poor country and then make them turn over their revenues to you for doing so, Tanden argued that this made a great deal of sense:

I don't think it's fair that we create our own domestic problems and then ask other nations to pay for it.

You see the adverse incentive problem here right? If we think we can make money off an incursion, we'll do it? That's a serious policy/messaging/moral problem for our foreign policy I think Florida reported 4,049 new cases today with 15% positive.

Cases are rising exponentially while tests are mostly flat.

Is it too much to ask people to recognize that Biden has held press briefings and the media hasn't covered them? Certainly not live. The right place to send this complaint is to CNN and MSNBC.

Tonight, Trump said he deliberately slowed testing as 120,000 people died. Months into this pandemic, there is still no plan for this public health and economic crisis.

To start, we need more tests, more PPE, and real economic relief. And we must vote Trump out in November.

Really? I think having said back in April that the re-openings weren't likely to cause big immediate spikes because the re-openings were pretty measured, but that this could lead to complacency as the re-openings became broader later on, has to count as a pretty good prediction.

Looking back, best course may have been to do a hard national 3-4 week lockdown early March. During that time, have gov. cover worker wages so Americans are not hurt economically. We'd be emerging from this now. But the Republican base would have never allowed it.

If I am Biden I just lay low and let Trump keep wrecking himself! No need for Joe to say anything now

It's not even like the virus is gone and the pandemic is over. My very well to do retired parents are barely stepping foot out of their house - they ain't going on no damn vacation - no matter what the financial reward is.

End the pandemic then the economy will heal

Joe Biden has won the Dem nomination earlier than anyone expected, united the Dem party, assembled a top flight campaign, currently beating an incumbent president by about 10 points in polls. But is simply dismissed as flawed With No Explanation Given. Pretty ridiculous.

The flawed candidate thing isn't the bad part. The rally "isn't a big deal" is the bad part.

This most out of touch garbage I've ever heard of. I thought it was the Onion. Her idea is a tax break for rich or upper middle class families to take a $4k vacation as people line up at food banks around this country and cases of COVID are spiking in AZ?!

As she points out it's a binary race. Next to Trump's disastrous campaign, he's running a pretty flawless campaign to me. And next to Trump, he walks on water.

A reporter claiming such things should at least provide a justification. She did not.

The basic problem is a theoretically objective reporter should NEVER express these opinions. But political reporting is all bullshit punditry. But I don't think the opinions themselves are crazy. But a "straight" reporter should never express them. The NYT is just fos.

When one evaluates a candidate or campaigns they do so in historical perspective not just measured against their competition in a given moment. The idea that one can't critically evaluate Biden or his campaign because the bar Trump sets is low is bizarre, to say the least.

A reporter should state the reason for dismissing the candidate ahead by 10 points as flawed. This is pretty basic. Particularly if said reporter works at an outlet that gets pretty worked up about objectivity.
